

President's Visits Reflect Special Ties Between Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia

The comprehensive outcomes of the visits are expected to set new milestones in the development of relations between Vietnam and its two Southeast Asian neighbors.

President Tô Lâm paid state visits to Laos and Cambodia from July 11-13, marking his first overseas trips in his new role as President of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. The visits were made at the invitations of General Secretary of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party Central Committee and President of Laos Thongloun Sisoulith, and Cambodian King Preah Bat Samdech Preah Boromneath Norodom Sihamoni.

These visits stem from high-level agreements, particularly those between the Communist Party of Vietnam, the Lao People's Revolutionary Party, and the Cambodian People's Party. The comprehensive results are expected to create new milestones in the development of relations between Vietnam and these two Southeast Asian neighbors.

In under three days, President Lâm engaged in 32 talks and meetings with high-ranking leaders, students, and overseas Vietnamese. He also visited economic organizations in the host countries. Additionally, leaders of Vietnamese ministries and agencies held working sessions with their counterparts from Laos and Cambodia to discuss specific cooperation ideas.

These interactions underscore the special ties and mutual commitment to furthering cooperation and friendship among the three nations. The state visits highlight Vietnam's strategic efforts to deepen its bilateral relations with Laos and Cambodia, fostering regional stability and economic growth.
